About

Digital Human Library (dHL) was founded in 2011 by a passionate educator named Leigh Cassell to address the urban and rural gap in education in ways that broaden the K-12 student experience.

For over 10 years, dHL has been providing K-12 teachers and students across Canada with equitable access to hundreds of professionals and over a thousand virtual tours and virtual reality experiences which connect students with new people, places, and ideas from around the world.

Benefits of Joining dHL

We believe that digital experiential learning opportunities should be made available to every K-12 student, regardless of barriers like geographic location or socio-economic status. So there is no cost for Experts to join Digital Human Library, and there is no cost for teachers and students to use our Video Conferencing Catalogue. Together, with your help, we can better meet the needs of all learners, and inspire them to start thinking about the variety of possible career paths available to them now, and in the future.

Benefits for Students

- Build relationships for learning
- Access experts across industries
- Discover new passions
- Learn new content
- Acquire valuable networking skills
- Develop global competencies/ transferable skills
